

1. What tags are used to surround PHP code?

- `<?php ?>`

2. What extension should a PHP file have?

- A PHP file should have the extension ".php".

3. What does a page's encoding refer to? What impact does the encoding have on the page?

- In PHP, a page's encoding refers to the character encoding used to represent the text and data on that page.
- Character Rendering
- Language Support
- File Size and Transfer
- Search Engine Optimization (SEO)

4. What PHP functions, or language constructs, can you use to send data to the Web browser?

- Generate dynamic web pages
- Form Processing
- Connecting to databases
- Image processing
- Sending Email

5. How does using single versus double quotation marks differ in creating or printing strings in php?

- In PHP, single quotation marks (' ') and double quotation marks (" ") can be used to create and print strings, but they have some differences in their behavior.

6. What does it mean to escape a character in a string in php ?

- In PHP, escaping a character in a string means using the backslash (\) character before a specific character to give it a special meaning or to treat it differently within the string.

7. What are the three comment syntaxes in PHP? Which one can be used over multiple lines?

- Single-line comments (//)
- Multi-line comments (/* */)
- DocBlock comments (/ */)

8. What character do all variable names begin with? What characters can come next? What other characters can be used in a variable's name?

- In PHP, the character that does all the variable names is the dollar sign "$".
- So, other characters that can be used in variable names in PHP are upper and lower case letters of the Latin alphabet

9. Are variable names case-sensitive or case-insensitive?

- In PHP, variable names are case-sensitive

10. What is the assignment operator?

- In PHP, the assignment operator (or equal sign "=") is used to assign a value to a variable. It is used to bind a variable to a specific value or update the value of a variable with a new value.

11. How do you create a string variable?

- To create a string variable in PHP, you can use the dollar sign `$` followed by the variable name you want to assign the value to, then the assignment operator `=` and the desired value you want to store in the variable. The variable is automatically considered a string when you assign a textual value to it

Example » [$name = "John Doe";]

12. What is the concatenation operator? What is the concatenation assignment operator?

- The sequence operator in computing programming is used to specify the order in which operations in an expression or instruction are performed. In PHP, the sequence operator is an operator that specifies the order in which instructions within an expression are executed.

13. How are constants defined and used?

- In PHP, constants are defined using the `define()` function, which is used to establish a value that cannot be changed during the execution of the program.